DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. Claims 1-5, 8-13, 15, 16 and 19-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lin et al. (US 2004/0171782), optionally in view of each individually of Chatterjee (US 5,948,839), Sun (US 6,358,450) or Kuramoto et al. (US 6,639,038).

Lin discloses polypropylene made using metallocene catalyst wherein the polymer has MWD, MFR, flexural modulus, isotactic ratio, haze and xylene solubles within the claimed scope (see Examples 1-5). Ethylene as minor comonomer is suggested in [0134]. Lin has not reported either the crystallinity or the crystallization temperature; however these features would appear to be inherent in the polypropylene disclosed in the reference in view of the exceedingly low xylene solubles, high isotacticity and high melting temperatures [0215]. The burden of proof is shifted to applicants to show that the disclosed polymers would not have the claimed unreported properties.

The examples of Lin do not include a nucleator or clarifier additive; however, these components are described as conventional additives and are suggested for inclusion at [0218] in conventional amounts. One of ordinary skill in the art would be motivated to select an amount within the claimed scope because such amounts are commonly used as additives for the purpose of nucleation and clarification of propylene polymers. Evidence for this assertion may be found in each of Chatterjee (abstract; col.

3, line 45-67; Example; claims), Sun (abstract; Example 4, claims) and Kuramoto (col. 15, lines 11-26).

Double Patenting

2. Claims 1-5, 8-13, 15, 16 and 19-25 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1 and 2 of U.S. Patent No. 7,087,680. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because, despite trivial differences in the endpoints of ranges, the instant claims set forth essentially the same polypropylene resin composition as those patented. The instant claims are not separately patentable from those already patented because if the instant claims were prior art, they would form the basis of a rejection under 35 USC 102, on grounds of clear anticipation.

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
